It is probable that Austin Goodwin was the father of Henry, who married his cousin, Susanna Dixon, as Nathaniel had no sons, Cornelius had no children, Lyde had no son Henry, Lionel is not known to have married while Austin, the remaining brother, is known to have married and Henry is therefore credited to him. THE GOODWINS OF ATLANTA, GEORGIA.

Henry Goodwin is said, according to the statement of one descendant, to have been the ancestor of this family, none of the others ever having heard his name. He was born in Virginia, according to this account, married and removed about 1770 to South Carolina. The only Henry Goodwin of this generation in this part of America, so far as I have been able to ascertain, is the Henry Goodwin of the Baltimore, Md., Goodwins. Another account is that this man, whether his name was Henry or not, was born in Wales as were his children. I can get no certain data concerning him. Children: i. John, born 1761 or 1762, married Nancy Grey; ii. Jesse, thought not to have married; iii. Ruth, married —— Clark, and descendants untraced; iv. Elizabeth, married —— Box, and descendants untraced.

John Goodwin (Henry) was born in 1761 or 1762 in Virginia or in Wales, the latter being most strongly asserted, and was married to Nancy Grey, who was born in Virginia. By occupation he was a farmer, in politics a Democrat and in religion a Baptist. They resided in Virginia, then in South Carolina, re-
